

The Boston Globe

Building housing Project Place opens in South End

3.1.07

Gatehouse, the new headquarters of Project Place, a nonprofit organization that provides services for homeless men and women, officially opened at the corner of Washington and East Berkeley streets in the South End. The six-story, $11 million building will have a restaurant by chef Joanne Chang and ground-floor retail space, and has 14 single-room units for residents transitioning to work, who will stay six months to two years. (Thomas C. Palmer Jr.)